Historical Sketch

The Hotel Dieu Hospital, also known as the "Sisters' Hospital", started when Father Ferrari asked Mother Marianna Flynn from Visitatrix of the Community of the Daughters of Charity at St. Joseph's Central House in Emmitsburg, Maryland about training experienced nurses to care for sick and tubercular patients in the El Paso area.

Four Sisters, Sister Stella Dempsy, Sister Dolores Eggert, Sister Genevieve Hennessy, and Sister Vincent Lee, arrived in El Paso on February 3, 1892. They temporarily lived at 1015 East Overland Street, a two-story building rented for them by Father Ferrari. The first location of the Hotel Dieu Hospital was small and considered unsatisfactory to both patients and the public. Subsequently, in March 1892 the Sisters moved to another location at 415 Upson Avenue, which was known as the Dieter Home.

The Dieter Home served as a temporary location for the Hotel Dieu Hospital. The Sisters were able to borrow money from banks and formed a corporation that helped with the construction and maintenance of a hospital in El Paso. The new property for Hotel Dieu Hospital, located at Stanton and Rio Grande Streets, was purchased on July 2, 1892. At this time, the Hotel Dieu Hospital was given a horse-drawn ambulance.

The Hotel Dieu School of Nursing opened in 1898. It began as a small training school, but enrollment increased every year. Due to the growing number of nursing students, the training school moved across the street from Hotel Dieu Hospital on August 1, 1917.

The Hotel Dieu Hospital and School of Nursing continued to expand during the twentieth century. During World War II, Hotel Dieu Hospital was designated as an Emergency Base Hospital until the end of the war.

In 1972 the Hotel Dieu School of Nursing merged with the University of Texas System School of Nursing. It later became the University of Texas College of Nursing in El Paso.

Hotel Dieu Hospital closed in December 1987.
