Biographical Sketch

Earl F. Evans (1898 – 1922) was a military pilot during WWI and the Polish-Soviet War. He was born on July 22, 1898, the son of Mrs. Sophie Evans. He was a cousin of famed El Paso pilot Elliot Chess. During his youth, Evans was a carrier in the Circulation Department of the El Paso Herald-Post for five years, before graduating from El Paso High School in 1916. During WWI he entered the American flying service on September 29, 1917, and was the only one of four men to pass aviation tests at Kelly Field in San Antonio, Texas. Evans went to France as an aviator at only 20 years old, eventually attaining the rank of Second Lieutenant in the Aviation Section. He was acknowledged as an expert flyer and was known for his love of aerial stunts such as barrel rolls and flying upside down for extended periods. His initial deployment was to France, where he moved between various cities such as Issoudun, Verdun, Nice, and St. Nazaire. Not long after, he redeployed to Manila in the Philippine Islands, although his service also took him to Vladivostok, Russia and Nagasaki, Japan. He and his cousin Elliot Chess also served in the Polish 7th Air Escadrille, which was known as the Kościuszko Squadron. The squadron was formed by U.S. volunteers during the Polish-Soviet War, which was fought from 1919 to 1921. After returning to El Paso, Evans helped found the Organization of the El Paso Aero Club as well as a luncheon club for airmen. He enjoyed giving recreational flights to people in the area, and local aviators saw him as a pioneer and a leader. Earl Evans was killed in an airplane accident near Pinon, New Mexico in 1922. He was piloting a plane with two passengers when the plane hit turbulence and fell 800 feet. Evans was 24 years old when he died.
