Biography or Historical Sketch

Jean Carl Hertzog (1902 – 1984) was a book designer, typographer, and printer. He studied printing at the Carnegie Technical Institute in Pittsburgh and later worked at the Owl Printing Shop in West Virginia and the W.S. McMath & Company in El Paso, Texas. In 1934 Hertzog opened his own print shop, The Press of Carl Hertzog. During his long career, Hertzog produced more than 300 works and collaborated with many well-known twentieth-century authors and illustrators including Tom Lea, J. Evetts Haley, Frank Dobie, C. L. Sonnichsen, José Cisneros, Harold Bugbee, and E. M. Schiwetz. In addition to his book design and printing work, Hertzog lectured in the Art, English, Advertising, and Journalism departments at the Texas College of Mines beginning in 1948. He then founded a print shop at the College of Mines which later became Texas Western Press. Hertzog retired as the director of Texas Western Press in 1972.
