THE PROSPECTOR'S

"CASTRO LOOK ALIKES"

Contestants take part in an old Cuban custom: plucking chickens.

After an extensive search The Prospector uncovered the existence of Castro's double (as far as the beard, cigar, fatigues, and chicken go) on the Texas Western campus. Bob Gribin, a freshman PE major, was selected as Castro's twin from a field of eight entries.

For placing first Bob received a 14 cent Havana cigar. Jerry Young, who came in second, was the proud recipient of five small American cigars. Juan Fresquez, third place winner, received one unplucked chicken which he promptly exchanged for a cigar.

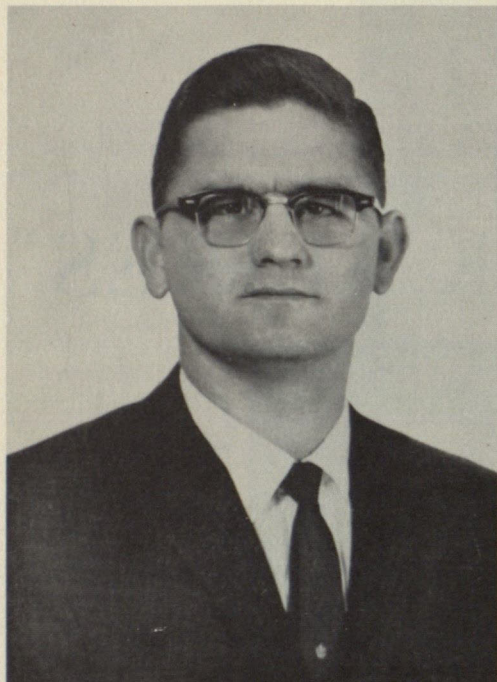

Other participants in this all-American contest were Salvador Ramos, Herb Bell, Dave Short Jr., Lloyd Adams and Henry Morales.

Mr. John J. Middagh, chairman of the Journalism Department; Charles Horky, editor of El Burro; and Carla Maffei, editor of The Flowsheet were the judges.
