

GROUPS

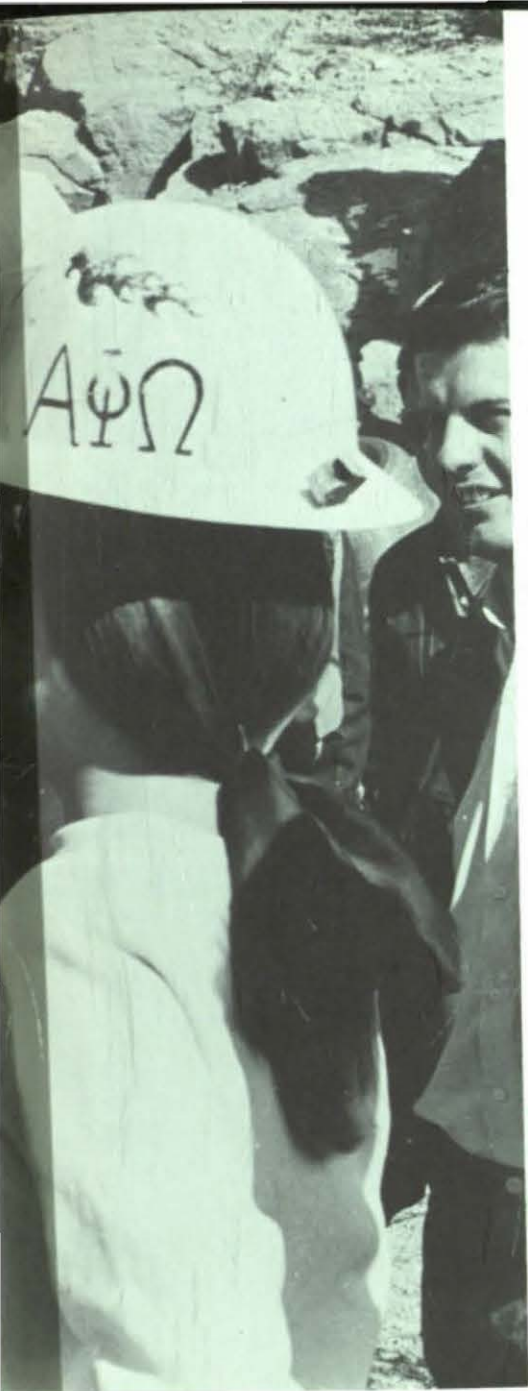

The individual stands out
in relation to accomplishments.
Interests guide the way
from classroom oblivion
to a world of activation.
To be recognized for yourself hoping that someone else might notice motivates the spirit.
A gesture of understanding when collecting for the Milk Fund, a sense of liveliness—
laughing as we walk the parade route.
An indication of pride as we support
the University functions, and most of all group identification
as we seek the security of companionship.
All of which adds a little more meaning to our lives.

SA Officers

It's grin then back to grind at the old salt mines for these four miners who have led this western community to new frontiers. The pioneers that won the west, the Student Association Officers, governed this border settlement on the foothills of the Rockies and coordinated its student activities.

Spirit Committee

High Spirits? Well, it could just be that these ten candidates for sleepless sweepstakes lost theirs in their concentrated drive to intoxicate students with non-bottled spirits. With a mixture of signs and streamers spiked with a number of miscellaneous delights, the Spirit Committee came up with a formula guaranteed to typify any student.

Student Senate

A new underground organization? No, a ground one. In fact, it is one of the most level headed groups on campus, the ground control of the university—the Student Senate. The Student Senate, composed of students from all the departments, served as the legislative body with prime governmental concern over student matters and affairs. 1968-69 marked a great year for the group as it passed numerous new bills and exercised its governing power wisely.

Activity Council

In dual cooperation, the Union Council and the Student Association joined forces to form the Activity Council. This group is for better planning of student activities and to prevent conflict between the two organizations. The group is headed by Steve Hogner of the Union and Oralie Anthony of the Student Association.

Supreme Court

The interpreters of law, agents of the judicial system—the Student Supreme Court. The Student Supreme Court handles discipline cases, traffic, dorm, organizational disputes, and constitutional questions. In a hush and by surprise, the Court handed down its major decision in November that disqualified the Homecoming float winner.

Union Council

In the shadows of a blistering afternoon sun, one of the foremost organizations on campus, the Union Council, relaxes for a moment before returning to the Union to plan, plot, and pilot activities. Lectures, luncheons, dances, and films; the Union Council was continuously coordinating activities for students and faculty in the heart of the University—the Student Union.

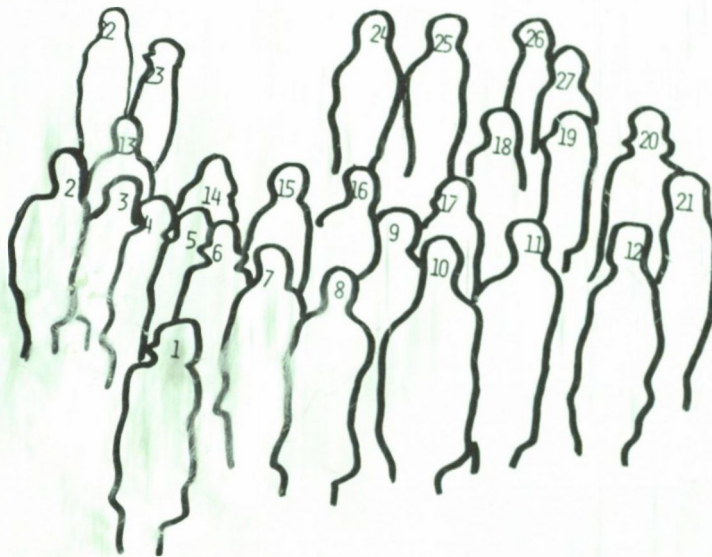

Associated Women Students

Women politicians? Well maybe not, but these women represent part of the student government at U.T. El Paso. The Associated Women Students organization is the governing body for all women students on campus to which each women's organization sends representatives. The purpose of AWS is to coordinate the activities of all the women's organizations and prepare freshmen women for college life.

Worrell Hall

Worrell Hall goes first class, whether in a vette or on a test. These dorm students, many of whom are on scholarships, must maintain a 3.0 overall grade point average. This particular dorm has a unique intellectual and musical record to add. They have housed five student association presidents in the past 13 years. They have also won Sing Song competition in 1968. No wonder that Worrell stays on top.

Bell

Pretty U.T. El Paso coeds, members of Bell Council enjoy the fresh air and scenery provided by Leech Grove. As members of the council, the women are among some 100 women residents of Bell Hall. The council sends its representatives to the Associated Women Students where they participate in both the governing and judicial councils. Bell Hall Council also has the opportunity to enjoy the dining facilities of Bell Hall as well as the companionship and friendship of many new people.

Hudspeth

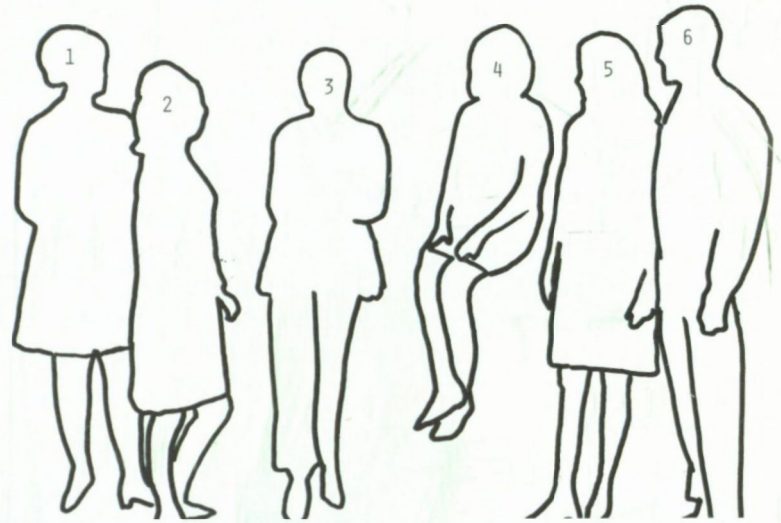

Demonstrating their physical prowess and good grooming, members of Hudspeth Council have a good time posing for the Flowsheet photographers. That's probably because the men know what fun dorm life on the U.T. El Paso campus really is. Hudspeth Hall houses 100 men combining their abilities in friendship, school spirit, intramural sports and leadership to make the hall one of the most impressive dorms on the campus. Residents come from all across the country as well as from several foreign nations.

Members of U.T. El Paso's only co-educational dorm council recognize the fun and challenge of living in Hawthorne House. Hawthorne House is the newest residence center on campus with spacious quarters for modern living. Members follow the same strict rules as enforced by other campus dorms, but find plenty of time to relax, make new friends—and occasionally study. Residents also actively participate in campus functions including homecoming, Christmas decorations, and Campus Carnival.

Housing 180 men, Burges Hall is active in campus events sponsoring school dances, participating in homecoming activities and other campus projects. Besides set functions, members devote most of their time to just living in the relaxed atmosphere of a college dorm. Of course, this includes late night bull sessions, new friendships, over-sleeping, and adjusting to the "good life."

Alpha Beta

Are these Alpha Beta members really planning a take over of the valuable revine by the Liberal Arts Building? No, actually it's a little display of enthusiasm for their service fraternity. As members of Alpha Beta, they are active campus and community service projects. Activities include close association with the spirit committee and the Student Association. Alpha Beta also sponsors a project helping local orphans.

Who has a better right than Beta Epsilon Pi, national honorary engineering society, to proudly display the U.T. El Paso Engineering Building? After all, they are the only national collegiate chapter of Tau Beta Pi in the entire New Mexico and Southwest area. Recognizing this honor, members enthusiastically participate in various campus activities including: assisting at Freshman Orientation, conducting slide rule classes for all interested students, sponsoring the annual engineering open house, and working in conjunction with the El Paso Engineering Guidance Council.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Art anyone? There is more to being a good scholar than just scholarship alone. The women of Alpha Lambda Delta, the national scholarship honorary for freshmen women, fully realize this as they prepare to tour the city art museum. Becoming a better woman involves more than above average scholarship; it involves the absorbment of culture. What better way than at the museum? Aside from the culture trips made by the organization, the women of Alpha Lambda Delta busy themselves with such programs as Honors Night and the high school Equivilency Program. While being active, the members must maintain a 3.5 grade point average.

Chenrizig

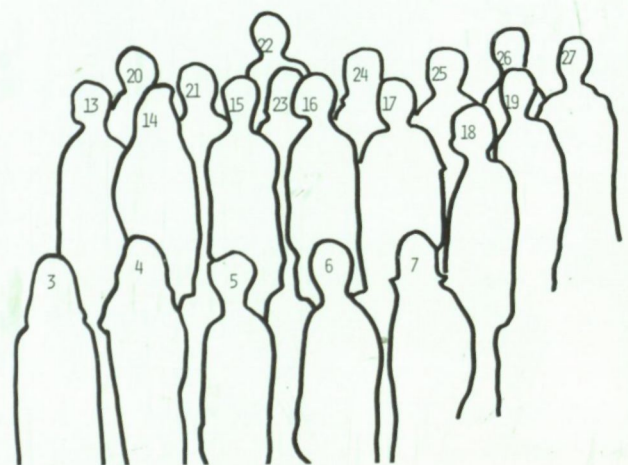

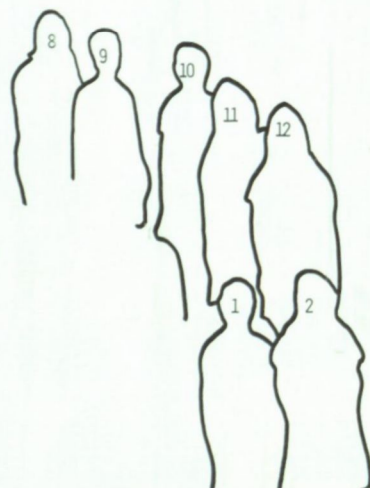

Chenrizig members make a pleasant addition to the new U.T. El Paso library. Chenrizig, a local senior women's honorary organization, places an emphasis on service. Members, who must maintain an over all 3 point grade average, promote relations between the faculty and students through special luncheons, sell football mums, sponsor a social get-together for freshmen women and promote scholarship. They have applied to become a chapter of Mortar Board, a national honorary organization.

Cardinal Key

Cardinal Key makes a pleasant addition to any desert scenery. These "desert flowers" are members of the national honorary sorority for junior women and are active members of the U.T. El Paso student body. The members, who must maintain a grade average of 2.75 and possess qualities of scholarship, leadership and character, are tapped on Woman's Honor Night. Besides emphasizing academics, service projects are a major part of Cardinal Key's function. Projects include visiting wounded soldiers from the Vietnam conflict, selling spirit ribbons, helping El Paso's orphanages and working in the museum.

Chi Gamma Iota

Chi Gamma Iota is the largest service organization on campus, having membership in excess of 150. With members of most races and ethnic backgrounds, its purpose is to promote good will and fellowship, to aid student veterans, to further understanding among veterans, students and faculty, and to render service to the community and to this university.

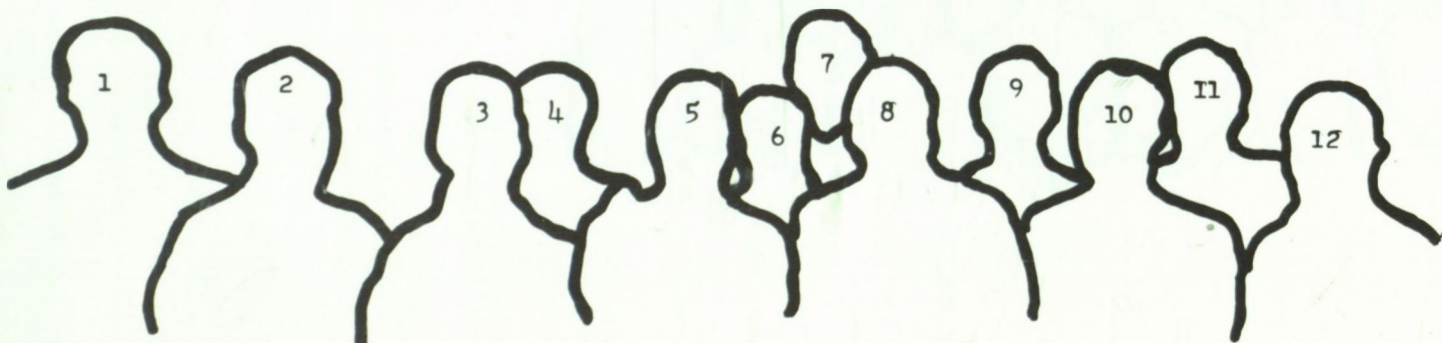

Circle K

Circle K, a service organization, went all out this year in helping with money raising projects. Early in the fall members collected several hundred dollars for the local United Fund. During the Thanksgiving holidays, Circle K collected money for needy people in the El Paso and Juarez area. In addition to helping out at registration, members ushered at various performances and events at both Liberty Hall and the El Paso County Coliseum.

Fun and games also contributed to the club's yearly activities. Circle K was crowned as football Intramural champions in the fall. Dancing galas were sponsored by Circle K at Christmas time and again for their annual initiation in January.

Members of Kappa Delta Pi have taken "Current Problems in Education" as their theme. In an effort to find concrete answers to urgent problems, the national honorary education society is conducting a survey of problems. As a major project they have invited Professor Edwards to discuss "Religion in Today's Schools," and Dr. Christian to discuss "The Mexican Student in Today's School."

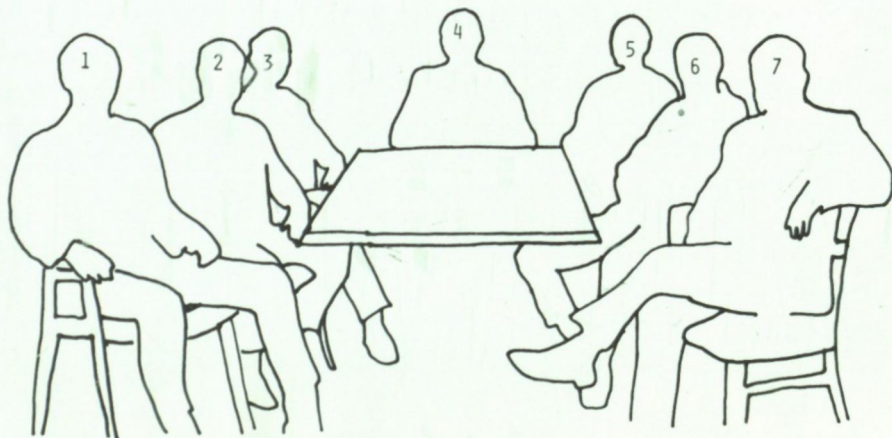

Student Legal Association

The Student Legal Association represents students in disciplinary actions taken by the University against them. This free service is available to all students although most cases handled are traffic cases and traffic ticket appeals. In Supreme Court cases on campus and in front of other disciplinary bodies, the members of the Legal Association gain an insight into law practices by defending individual students.

Phrateres

Girls who have their meetings at seven every Wednesday morning have to be dedicated, and that is just what these girls are. They are the members of Phrateres International, a womens' social and service organization whose membership is open to all University women enrolled as full-time students. U.T. El Paso's chapter is Sigma Phi and this local chapter sponsors several service projects during the year, including some internationally oriented. Phrateres members give food and clothing to needy families at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

PE Majors

How would you like to play around the rest of your life? If you would, you'd better be a good sport. Obviously, this is what PE majors have in mind. Whether they become professional ball players, coaches, teachers, or athletic directors, their profession will be one of fun and recreation. But not all will be sweet as cream. There will be times of hard fought defeats, bruised and broken bones, and long, hot, sweaty days; but then again, that's sports.

Pre-Med

The beginning of a long hard road is in store for all Pre-Med students. Anesthesia fumes, scalpels, syringes, and other medical equipment will be familiar sights to these students for a long time to come. Already these students have visited various hospitals and clinics to observe doctors and nurses in their work and to ask questions about what will be their life time profession. Sleepless, long, and hungry nights will become a part of their lives but will prove worthwhile and successful at the end of the road.

Study, study, study! That is exactly what it takes to maintain a 3.0 grade average as required of the members of Sardonyx, the men's honorary society for juniors and seniors. And what better place to study than the new library on campus? When not helping with such service projects as freshmen orientation or Honor's Night, a member of Sardonyx could probably be found either studying in the library or admiring the University seal in the front entrance of the library.

Sigma Delta Pi

Meetings, meetings all the time, but well worth the time spent on them. And Sigma Delta Pi, the national Spanish Society, succeeds in making their meetings worthwhile by encouraging group discussions entirely in Spanish, and by having interesting and varied programs. Meetings also mean more than the study of Spanish, they mean the making of new friendships and the exchanging of new and old ideas.

Spurs

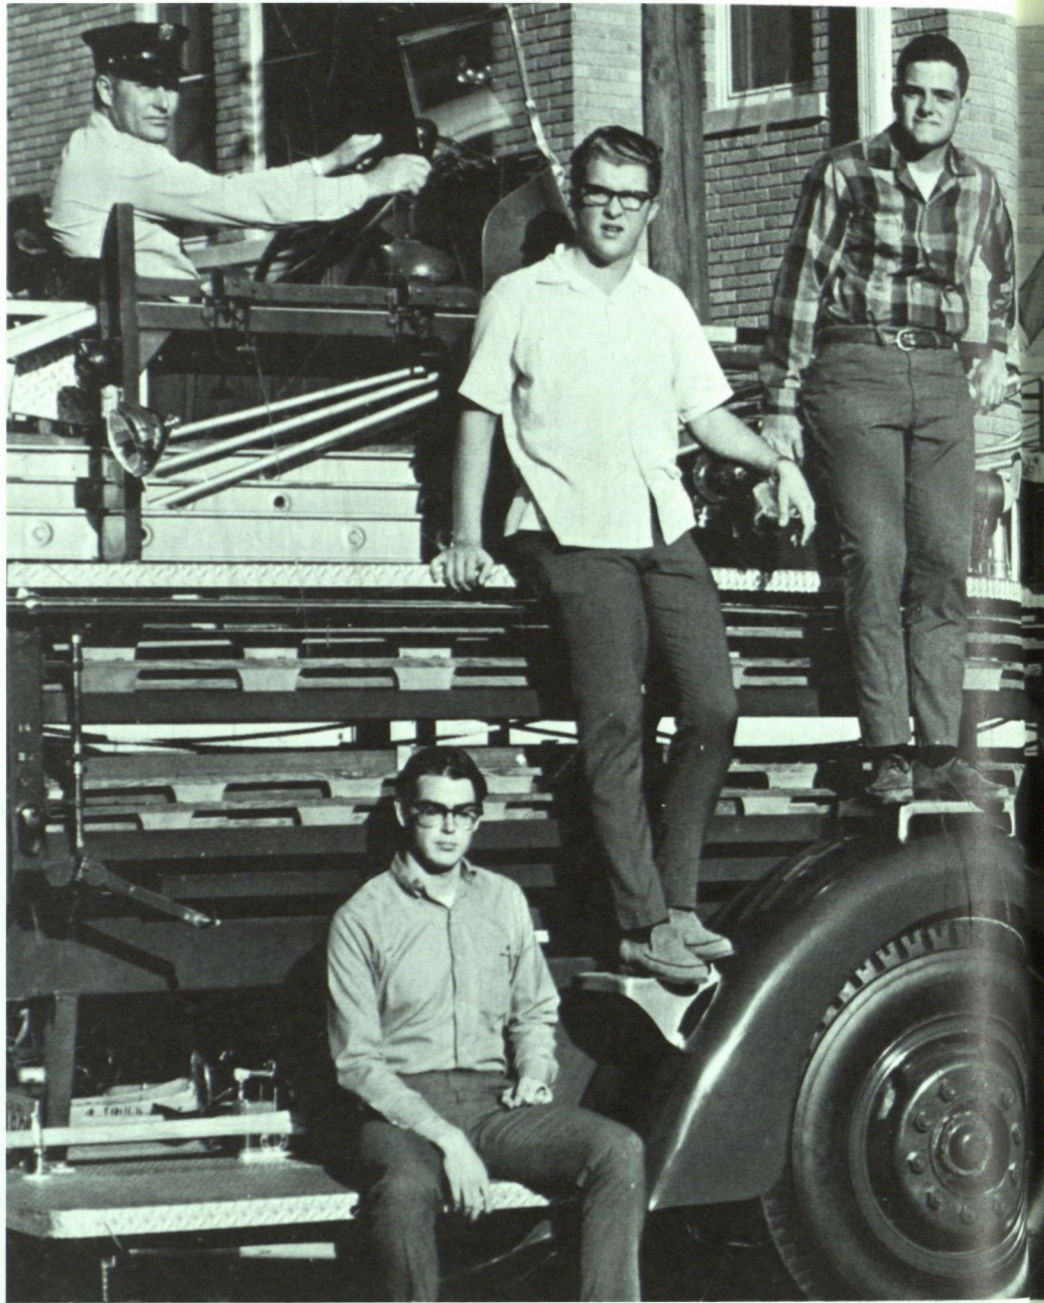

At your service? Well, most of the time anyway. Spurs, the national service honorary for sophomore women, takes a little time out from their many service projects to gather at the local stables and enjoy some horseback riding. After all, maintaining a 2.5 grade point average and performing such service projects as ushering at drama performances, serving at the homecoming barbeque, and sponsoring Hi and Smile Week, does take up extra leisure time. But the U.T. El Paso Spurs, in their cheerful white uniforms, are always ready and willing to give up activities such as horseback riding to be "at your service."

Steven Scholars

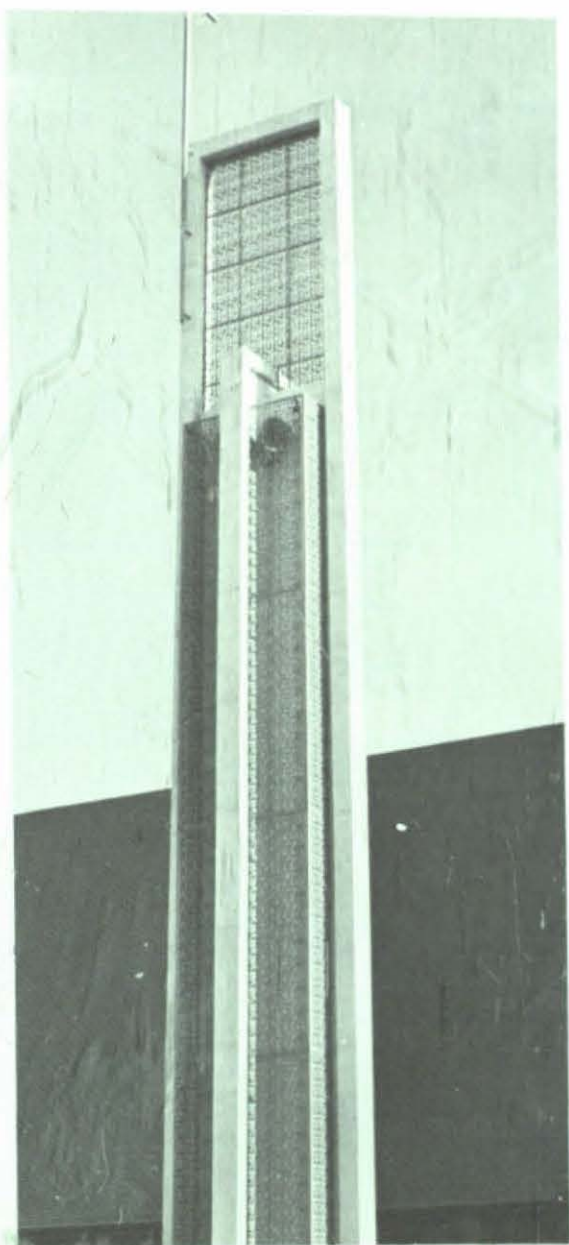

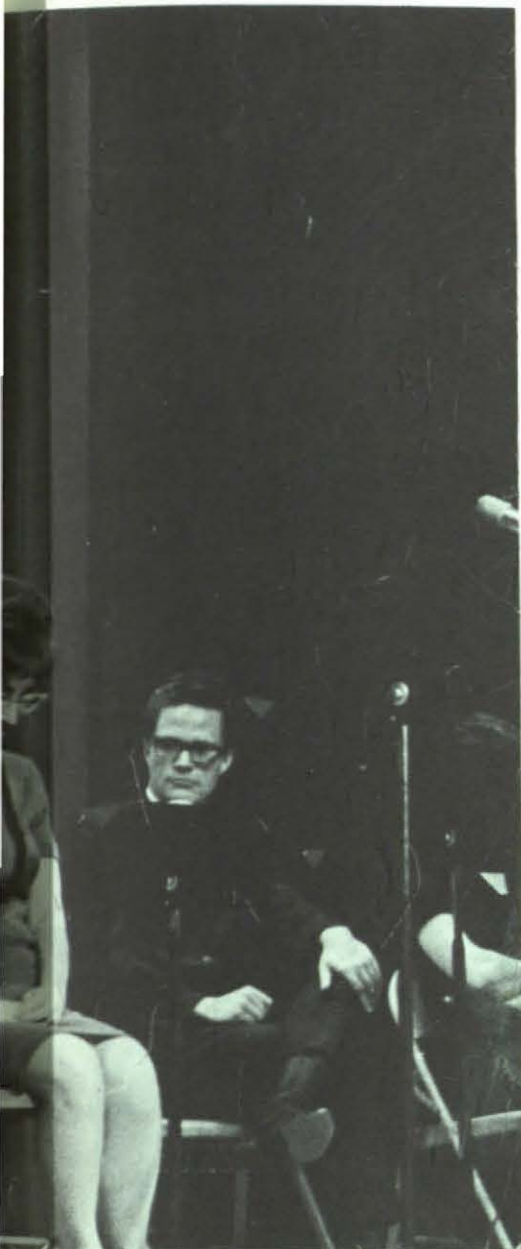

The Steven Scholars must have been fired up to achieve the highest scholarship awards made at U.T. El Paso. These scholarships range up to $5,000 for four years.

The Steven Scholarships are awarded after special considerations by the scholarship committee. Each candidate is examined in regard to personal characteristics, with special attention given to the following: personality, leadership, cooperativeness, personal adjustment, initiative and ambition, extra curricular activities, good health, personal integrity, and potential for development in a particular field.

Religion And Music

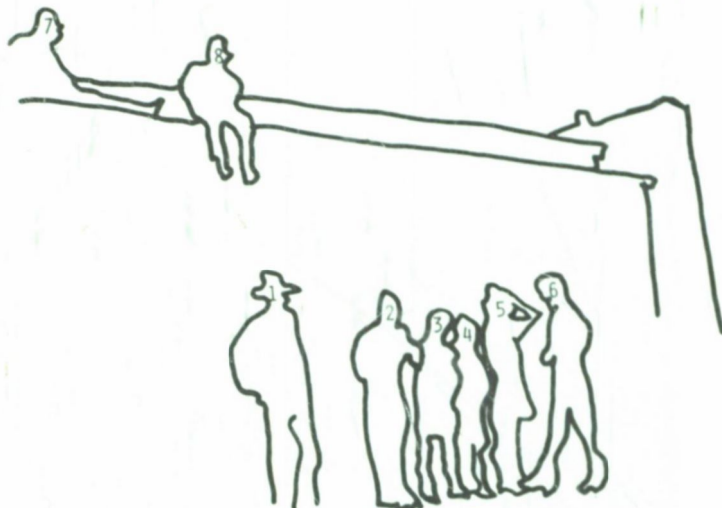

Baptist Student Union

The Baptists have taken over the Methodists, for this picture anyway. They were forced to move out of their previous building to make way for the new Engineering-Education building. The Baptist Student Union members are sharing the classrooms, recreation room and lounge of the Methodist Student Center with their offices down stairs. The BSU join for a year of fellowship in many dimensions, of challenge in missions, of opportunity for sharing a faith that will not be contained.

Acquainting students and faculty with the Christian Science faith and strengthening the bonds of fellowship are very important objectives of the organization of college students.

Kappa Kappa Psi

The AX chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi is off the launching pad heading for a record-breaking year. Upon selection as one of the top ten chapters in the nation, their expectations are high with 22 active members returning. Their activities range from selling cokes during band rehearsals, moving interest with the band and fraternity in mind, to preparing a social for the guest conductor for the annual high school band night. Expecting more pledges during second semester, George Hunter, their District IV President says, "Just watch us go!"

Tau Beta Sigma

To label Tau Beta Sigma, a national honorary sorority for college bandswomen, as wholly serious would be an understatement. Their social activities include holding receptions for guest conductors and guest artists of the UT El Paso symphonic band and marching calvacade, and helping with various band functions with services such as providing apples to all the band members as they traveled by bus to the University of Arizona football game in Tucson. This chapter was chosen one of the top ten in the nation at their past national convention and the top chapter in District IV at the previous district convention.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Music anyone? If not for you, then certainly for the members of Sigma Alpha Iota, the international professional fraternity for women in the field of music. These music majors not only excel in music, but they must maintain high scholarship and character. Service and money making projects keep the members of SAI busy through out the year working and playing. But most important the women of SAI promote the development of music through out the college.

Marching Cavalcade

Perhaps the best known of the University bands is the Marching Cavalcade, a 150 piece unit, which has received acclaim for the precision of its marching and the concert artistry of its playing while on the field. Flexibility and musicianship mark the programs of the U.T. El Paso Symphonic Band. The roster lists 56 men and 21 women. Forty-five of these are music students, and the rest come from an interesting variety of intellectual disciplines. As members of one of the largest and most respected organizations on campus, bandsmen and bandswomen feel an intense pride and loyalty to the band.

University Chorale

The University Chorale participates in singing for clubs and various organizations throughout the city. Among these activities include others such as their participation in ballet and opera choruses, home concerts, and tours which are also part of the program. A tour to Mexico is planned for this year, they toured Canada and the entire Southwest in previous years. The University Chorale bases its selection upon auditions and individuals may become soloists for operas or other programs. They study selected works in the field of choral literature.

Majorettes

U.T. El Paso majorettes, Marilyn Gregory and Rebecca Phillips, discover a new method to capture an audience.

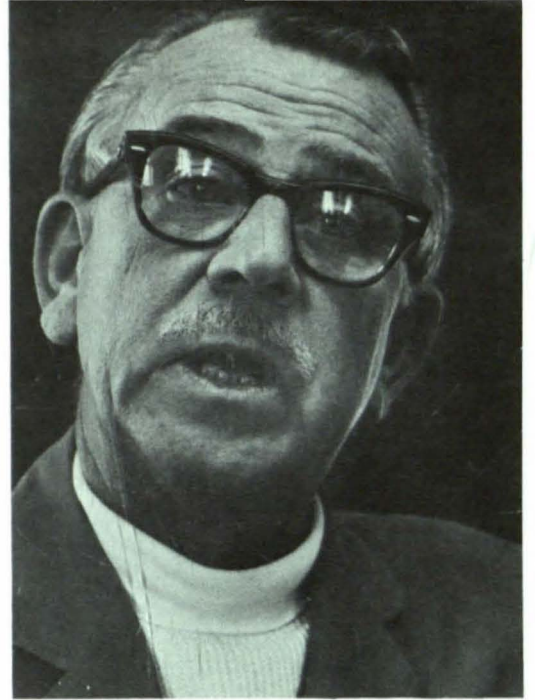

Golddiggers

The Golddiggers appear in their school uniforms in front of Memorial Gym. They are a part of the U.T. El Paso Marching Cavalcade, participating in half-time shows at football and basketball games. Each year, the Golddiggers go on one of the out-of-town trips with the band; this year they went to Tucson, Arizona. As active supporters for the University, the girls participate in the homecoming parade, sing song, and talent shows.

Publications

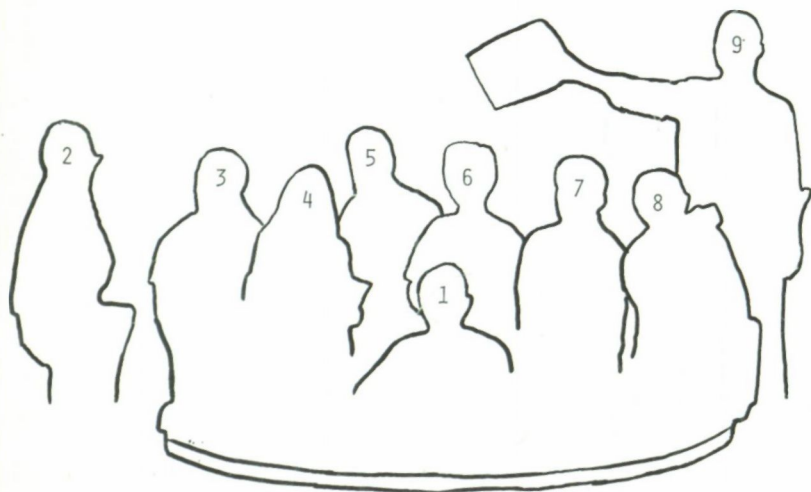

Prospector

The Prospector editorial staff gathers around the horseshoe table, enthusiastically tackling the copy for the bi-weekly campus newspaper. The editor, Robert Scardino, relaxes with his feet up while members of the staff are armed for action with cameras, past issues of the Prospector, and photographs. To facilitate the bi-weekly publication, the Prospector is now printed by the off-set process. Staff members and editors have worked to promote their newspaper as the "Assayer of Student Opinion."

El Burro

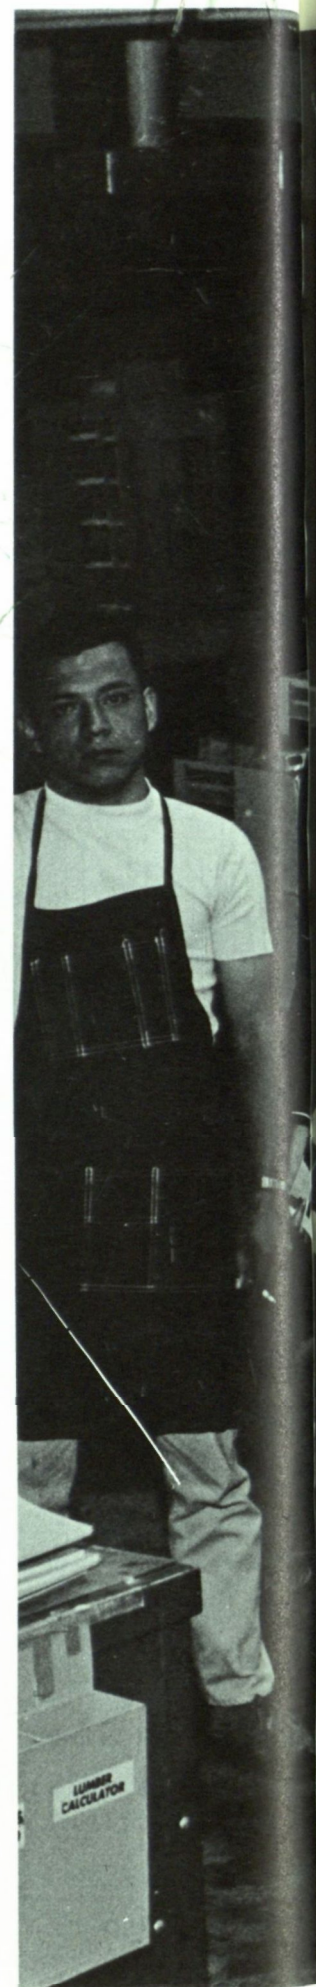

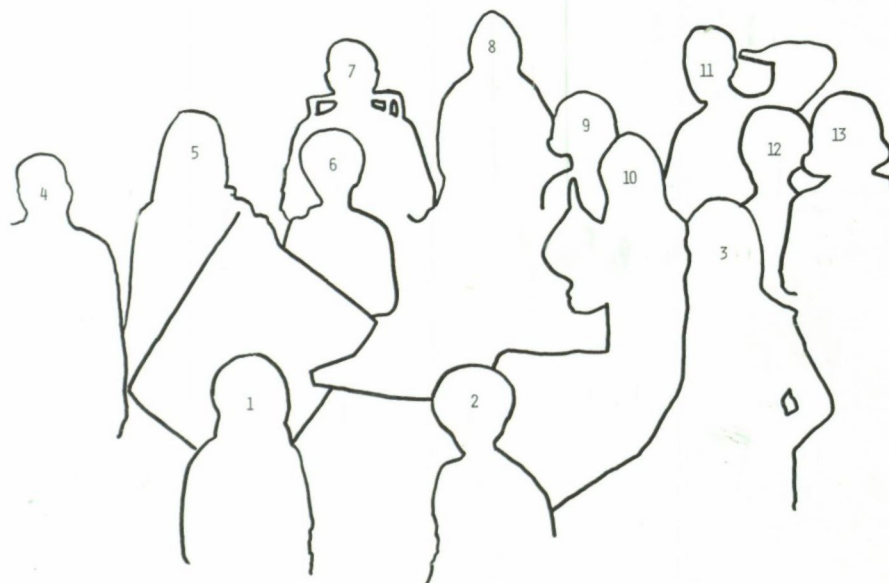

El Burro staff members find the outdoor atmosphere most inspiring. In fact, one member is just "head over heels" about the "old outdoors." The group took advantage of building construction in the fall to find a distinctive site for literary discussions and just plain enjoying nature. El Burro staff collects, writes and edits material for the campus variety magazine. The magazine, youngest of the University's student publications, has experienced an up-and-down career as a humor, variety, literary volume and competes annually for honors in the Texas Inter-collegiate Press Association contests.

Flowsheet

Printing never looked easier, huh? The editors and staff members of the Flowsheet try their hand at the mechanical processes that bring the yearbook into being. Donning printers' aprons, each member grabs a tool and this is what they came up with. The print shop will never be the same. Under the direction and editorship of Sandy Avritt, the Flowsheet staff arranged picture taking sessions, worked on layouts, wrote copy and helped prepare the index. One of Sandy's innovations for the 1969 Flowsheet is the group picture technique for organizations which is more natural and true-to-life.

Press Club

What could be a more appropriate activity for the Press Club than pressing? Rallying in front of the journalism building, Kelly Hall, the Press Club members pull out their ironing board, irons, and other necessary aids on a Saturday afternoon to discuss the campus publications and to plan activities. The Press Club has become a recognized campus organization. Its members have participated in such activities as Journalism Day and Homecoming. The Press Club is composed of Journalism majors and minors.

Gathered around their plaque, these students and their advisor are concentrating on records, microphones, lighting, cameras and other equipment of their trades. Perhaps their interest stems from their mutual membership in Alpha Epsilon Rho, the national Radio-TV honorary fraternity. The local chapter members are outstanding Radio-TV majors who meet to discuss equipment, innovations and broadcasting. They also give service to the local college radio station, KTEP.

Fraternity Sweethearts

Looking like New York models isn't hard for these campus beauties. And what better way to describe the fraternity sweethearts than pert and elegant. Each beauty is selected for her charm, personality, and interest in the fraternity. Each sweetheart is honored at an annual Spring formal and serves as fraternity sweetheart for the following year. Such an honor has its duties which include helping with fraternity rush and participating in all fraternity sponsored activities.

Alethia Kais

Let's get organized! So came about the Alethia Kais, the auxiliary branch of Alpha Kappa Lambda. The first year is always the hardest, but the girls in Alethia Kais seem to have overcome this idea as they worked diligently to organize. And succeed they did as they had projects to raise money for the fraternity building fund and helped with rush.

Crescents

Need any help moving? If so, just call on the Crescents. But it seems as though the auxiliary branch of Lambda Chi Alpha made more of a mess than anything else as they helped the fraternity move to a new lodge. Crescents's other activities include giving dinners for the fraternity, helping at rush, and taking part in all fraternity sponsored events.

Order Of Diana

Interfraternity

Composed of two representatives from each campus fraternity, Interfraternity Council places emphasis on friendship, cooperation and understanding. Members of the council foster these goals through the exchange of meaningful ideals and suggestions. The council also does much to recognize and appreciate members of all Greek organizations by sponsoring the annual Greek Week. Through varied activities and competition the Greeks have a good time while strengthening the bonds of friendship. The week also is designated for the announcement of the Outstanding Greek Man and Woman.

Panhellenic

As members of the U.T. El Paso Panhellenic Council, these young women are representatives of the five nationally affiliated sororities on campus: Alpha Epsilon Phi, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Delta, and Zeta Tau Alpha. The council is the major governing body for sororities setting standards and regulations. The major responsibility of Panhellenic Council, besides sponsoring good will and cooperation between sororities, is the supervision of rush activities. The council evaluates the procedures every year to insure a fair and effective program. Other activities include the annual Panhellenic workshop to promote and improve campus-sorority activities and cooperation.

Sweets for the Sweet. Happy $\text{AE}\Phi$'s get together at the local ice cream parlor to select their favorite flavored lollipop. Keeping with the sweet tooth, the pledges sold candied apples as one of their pranks on the actives. Besides their social activities, the $\text{AE}\Phi$'s have adopted their new National Philanthropy, The Arrow, as a project to help the American Indian. Aside from sorority functions, the women of $\text{AE}\Phi$ participate in many campus activities and honorary societies. Phi Kappa Tau Fun loving Phi Tau's pause for a "cool one." Well, maybe they are a little more enthusiastic than that! Wouldn't you stop for a cool one too, on a lazy Sunday afternoon. Who can blame them after participating in a full year of activity and fun? Alpha Psi chapter of Phi Kappa Tau is the oldest national fraternity on campus and has rapidly grown with the University. This year the Phi Tau's have done much to combine civic service with fun. Their activities include sponsoring a Christmas party for children of the Southwest Orphanage, building a homecoming float for Fanfare '68, participating in the Campus Carnival and sponsoring the annual "Splash day" held on the first day of spring when their lodge pool is filled with water.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Welcome to the SAE Open House! Usually, the men are a bit more formal in their attire. However, they suddenly felt the need to welcome their guests in a more relaxed atmosphere. The SAE's typify the versatility and enthusiastic energy of the Greek Fraternities. Known as the "singing fraternity", the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon serenade the sororities while they tap new members for Little Sisters of Minerva. Texas Gamma chapter seems to be a "swinging fraternity" as well. They enjoy parties and fun while achieving the more serious expectations of their brotherhood.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

TKE's are flying high this year. Although they seem ready to board the Continental jet for a destiny unknown, the TKE's have decided at the last moment to remain part of the U.T. El Paso "jet set" instead. Known for their civic and school service projects, the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon have contributed their time and effort to beautify the campus. They have regular speakers and breakfasts throughout the school year. When not working on worthy projects, the TKE's enjoy the rapid pace of fraternity living.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Hanging from the rafters and peeking from the windows, the Zeta's present a pretty picture of sorority life. The pledges don their grubbier hats and their craziest hats to distinguish their pledge class from the active chapter. The actives look poised and polished in their blue uniform dresses. The Zeta's are very proud of their new wooden crest, detailed with sorority symbolism. They are also exceptionally proud of the honors and achievements of their individual members.

First Battalion Staff

Army ROTC

Through the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps students are prepared to enter the U.S. Army as officers. Many hours of drill and instruction produce men of responsibility and leadership. The ROTC department is divided into two battalions; the First Battalion consists of Companies A, B, and C, and the Second Battalion consists of Companies E, F, and G.

The ROTC program produces men of responsibility and leadership. Through the instruction the men learn and practice Military Sciences and tactics and are trained in the art of organizing and motivating. The ROTC cadets are responsible for raising the flag every morning and furnish color guards for various school functions.

Sponsors

The first cavalry wagon train never had scouts like these U.T. El Paso Sponsors. All Sponsors must possess outstanding drill characteristics and conform to the highest ideals of the ROTC Sponsors. They must also maintain a 2.0 overall grade point average.

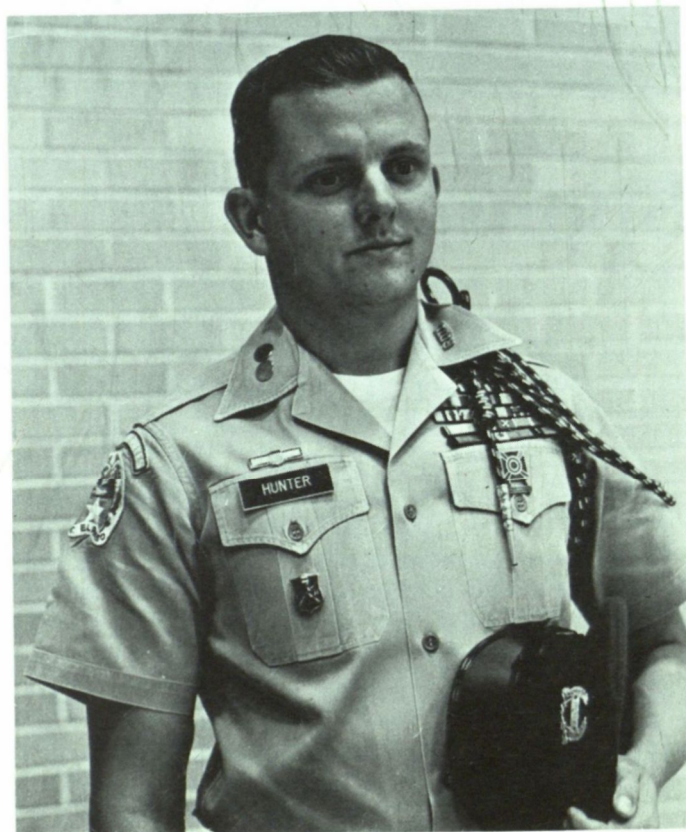

The purpose of the ROTC Sponsors is to encourage, preserve, and develop the highest ideals of the military profession. These scouts, instead of finding Indians, picked up three first place trophies which were won at the PR drill meet, the Scabbard and Blade meet, and the New Mexico State meet, and an outstanding exhibition trophy won at the Texas A&M meet.

PR Commander

Ed Hunter commands the now nationally recognized Pershing Rifle drill team. He states, "In the past ten years, Pershing Rifles have come from the little known group over the hill into a well integrated part of campus and community life." Ed and his PR unit are involved primarily in developing the best drill team in the country.

PR Sweetheart

Sandy Perryman reigns as the present Pershing Rifle sweetheart. Given the rank of honorary captain, she serves as hostess to their various functions. Sandy attends the PR meetings and assists with their many activities, which include building a homecoming float, and guarding the flag on different occasions. She is also eligible to compete in the regional meet with other PR Sweethearts.

PR's drop their guns for a breather at a nearby river bank.

Pershing Rifles

"Can do" is the motto adopted by this year's Pershing Riflemen. Exemplifying their new motto, they won the participation award for homecoming week. The Pershing Rifles, an honorary military organization, are dedicated to leadership, duty, and community service. The PR's on the U.T. El Paso campus are interested in providing service to the University and the city by providing a polished color guard at the larger civic functions in the city.

PR Pledges

The Pershing Rifle pledges laid down their guns to relax in the park, after participating in one of the roughest pledge programs in the country. They must attend four 7:00 a.m. meetings a week, Saturday and Sunday drill sessions, and undergo a rigorous physical fitness program. Unlike many of the other groups on campus, Pershing Rifles pledges undergo a hell month instead of a hell week. The effect of the program can be seen in the fact that Company H-17 has been awarded best company for seven out of the past eight years.

SAME

The Society of American Military Engineers, is a corporation in which the engineering services of the armed forces join all fields of civilian engineering practices. The purposes of the Society are to advance knowledge of military engineers, to promote efficiency in the military engineer service and to develop relations of helpful interest between the engineering profession in civil life and that in the military service.

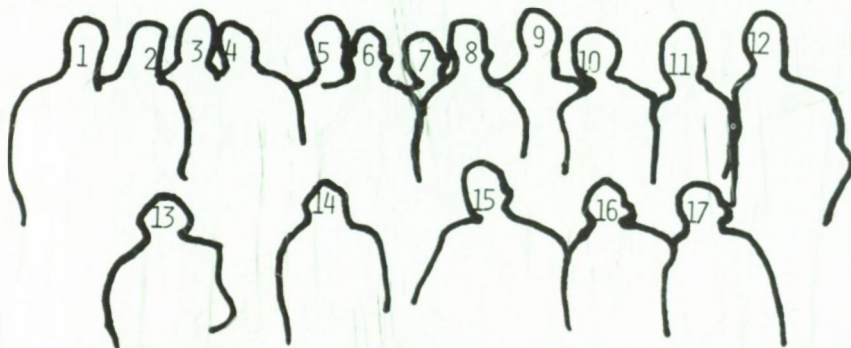

Officers of SAME include: King Gorman, Treasurer; Donald Hudson, President; Bob Mascorro, Vice-President; and Bert Jennings, Secretary.

Scabbard And Blade

Scabbard and Blade is the national honorary military society founded on the principles that military duty is an obligation of citizenship and that college men have a greater responsibility because of the opportunities afforded them for the study of military science. The members of the honor society performs services which include sponsoring the Combat Hop and the Military Ball, manning the cannon at football games, and raising and lowering the flag.
